Business Solutions Choice of Entity Comparison Chart

	C Corporation	S Corporation	Limited Liability Corporation
Number of Owners	NO LIMIT	1 TO 100	NO LIMIT
Type of Owners	No Restrictions	Individuals (US Citizens/ Residents) Estates, Certain Trusts, No Corporations, Llc's, Non Resident Aliens	No Restrictions
Different Classes of Owners	Unlimited	One Class Stock Permitted; Voting Differences Permitted	Unlimited
Transferability	Yes: Restrictions May Be Imposed By Shareholders Agreement	Yes; Restrictions May Be Imposed By Shareholders Agreement; Transfer To An Ineligible Party May Result In The Termination Of The S Corp Status	Economic Rights May Be Assignable; Transfer Of Governance Rights Requires Consent Of Members: Agreement Governs
Liability	Shareholders Not Typically Personally Responsible for Business Debts and Liabilities	Shareholders Not Typically Personally Responsible for Business Debts and Liabilities	Shareholders Not Typically Personally Responsible for Business Debts and Liabilities
Levels of Federal Taxation	2 (Corporate And Shareholder)	1 (Individual; Pass Through)	1 (Individual; Pass Through)
Advantages	Widely Recognized Entity Structure: Premier Entity For Going Public: Stability Attractive For Investors	Pass Through Taxation; Corporate Form Is Recognized By Investors	Pass Through Taxation; Limited Liability Shield; Few Corporate Formalities: Flexibility In Operating And Tax Classifications - Including Profit Distribution Of Profits
Disadvantages	Double taxation on earnings and profits: corporate formalities must be maintained	Limitation on shareholders: limited to one class of stock; distributions must be made pro-rata: requires a timely election: must adhere to corporate formalities	Undeveloped case law; management structure not homogenous and may be unfamiliar to many:
Types of Business Best Suited For	Businesses that may have large start up costs & want to look for outside investors; may want to go public in the future; want to have multiple classes of stock and sell stock to anyone	Businesses that have low start up costs; that do not need to purchase a significant amount of assets to begin operations; businesses that have no storefront, low operating costs, no warehouse	Businesses that hold real estate or other tangible assets; businesses that want flexibility in management and ease of governance without having to adhere to corporate formalities

Accountants & Consultants

LOS ANGELES | ORANGE COUNTY | WOODLAND HILLS | MONTEREY PARK | SILICON VALLEY | SAN FRANCISCO | POMONA | RIVERSIDE | DENVER, CO